FairCom Corporation announced today the recent completion of a license agreement with McDonnell Douglas Corporation for the use of FairCom's c-tree Plus[®] file handler and FairCom[®] Database Server technology.

"FairCom is completing an increasing number of OEM licensing distribution agreements." According to Randal Hoff, FairCom's Vice President, Business Development. "We have offered very flexible licensing arrangements tailored to meet specific corporate requirements for a number of years. FairCom database technology is well suited for virtually any type of industry where performance, flexibility and portability are important." Hoff explains. "We have recently completed OEM agreements with Computer Associates, Federal Express, and Honeywell, among others. These companies and others worldwide have found FairCom's licensing arrangements allow them the latitude and flexibility required to meet today's market demands."

FairCom was founded in 1979 and later sold its first database development tool, Access Manager to Digital Research. In 1984 FairCom released its first true application development tool, the c-tree(file handler. Today c-tree Plus(is running in over 100 CPU/OS environments in more than 98 countries worldwide. FairCom technology in incorporated into the products of companies like Hewlett-Packard, NCR, Cray, GTE, Apple, IBM and Great Plains Software.

No financial details of the agreement were released.
